Dear Bill:

As your sponsor in the Fairway Club and also as President of the Fairway Club, I have to address a few items with you.

I noticed playing at the Philadelphia Country Club yesterday that you did some things that are contrary to the traditions of the Fairway Club, and also are not in good taste in general, and I will ask you to refrain from this activity when you are playing with the Fairway Club. We have to always remember that we are guests of the host club so our behavior has to be better than the members or else our ability to schedule events there will not be honored.

Specifically, your "short fuse" over poorly executed shots causes you to do various things ranging from pitching clubs, throwing balls and invoking the golf god in high modulation (shouting). In addition, having conversations while other people are about to play is not in good taste either.

Other than that, it was a very pleasant day but I trust we will not have any reoccurrences of this type of activity in the future.

Best regards,

Dear Ed

In response to your letter of Aug 28 1997, I plead guilty to the short fuse charges. I will make every effort to curb my childish behavior on the course. Unfortunately my skill at the game does not match my enthusiasm, hence the venting of spleen on a lousy shot. This behavior is directed inwardly but is not appropriate under any circumstances.

I will however take exception to the charge that I have conversations when others are about to play. I was guilty of distracting you on the 18th Tee on the 28th, but that was unintended and a response to my caddy partner Jim Tenkle. I make a special effort to remain silent and unobtrusive when others are playing because it bothers me tremendously.

In fact you mailed me on #7 #4 #11 and #13, plus your rules dissertation with some one from another foursome was a distraction. I am sure it was unintentional and you probably didn't notice it, but it was there. My point is that I would never willingly disturb another player and assume that others feel the same way. Sometimes it happens, unfortunately, and I apologise for upsetting your shot.

On another subject - what is the fairway club policy on the taking & giving of putts during these matches? I have no problem with conceding putts to you opposed but I've seen a lot of long takees. The outcome of these matches won't change the progress of mankind but it is pretty loose around 10.0

yes it was a pleasant day and I am sorry that I couldn't stay
-diver. The club has a nice group of guys.

Sincerely

Bill Wall
